

Bedtime idioms

It's a big decision. I'd like to sleep on _____ and I'll give you my answer tomorrow.

What's the matter with Maria today, I think she got out of the wrong side of _____ this morning.

Never in my wildest _____ did I think I would one day be living and working in California.

I can't keep my eyes open anymore, I'm going to hit the _____.

Jimmy must have been very tired, I started reading him his bedtime story and he went out like a _____.

I'm very tired. I'm hoping to take a _____ before we go out tonight.

I can't believe you didn't hear the thunder last night you must have been sleeping like a _____.

I always like to be the first to arrive at the office. The early bird catches the _____.

If we want to beat the rush hour traffic we'll need to get up at the crack of _____ tomorrow.

log like it dream bed dawn sack nap worm

Can you think of any situations where you could use some of these idioms?