

Hard work

It's not healthy Martina. You've been burning the _____ at both ends trying to please your new boss, and it's making you ill.

I'm afraid some of this team haven't been pulling their _____. If that doesn't change soon, then we will have to let some people go.

We will only meet this deadline if we roll up our _____ and knuckle down to some hard work.

I'm afraid I won't be able to come to the cinema tonight, I'm completely _____ under at work.

I really need a holiday. I've been working like a _____ preparing everything for the merger.

It's so typical of my boss. I do all the _____ work, and she takes all the credit for my effort.

I think I'm quite a hands-off manager. Occasionally I have to crack the _____, but generally, I trust my team and let them get on with it.

sleeves dog whip candle weight donkey snowed
---

Do you have any similar idioms in your own language?