

Crime idioms

It's not fair, everyone knows he cheated but he gets away with _____ because his dad is the headmaster.

The judge found the pair guilty and they are both now facing 10 years behind _____.

The document which appears to show bank transfers to a swiss bank account could be the smoking _____ which police have been looking for.

The hotel charged me $50 for a ten minute phone call, it's daylight _____ !

Lucas always denies taking my food but last week I caught him _____-handed eating my biscuits.

Police think the robbery may have been an inside _____ because there is no sign of anyone breaking into the building.

Those two men are hanging around by my car again. I'm sure they're up to no _____.

Jones has been on the _____ since last week when colleagues first discovered the jewelry was missing.

Police fear that there will be a crime _____ targeting pupils carrying expensive smart phones.

good red job murder bars wave robbery run gun

Can you think of any situations where you could use some of these idioms?