

fire idioms

He denies it of course, but you know what they say, there's no _____ without fire.

You can't keep partying at night and getting up for work the next day. You're burning the _____ at both ends and it's not healthy!

The singer met the guitarist ten years ago at a party in London and they immediately got on like a _____ on fire.

After the fire which devastated the northern part of the city, a new and more modern architecture has risen from the _____.

I don't play the stock market, I got my _____ burned when I invested half of my savings just before the financial crisis in 2008.

The actor burnt his _____ with the Hollywood studios when he criticised many of the studio heads in his scandalous autobiography.

I think you should call in a professional, you're playing with _____ if you try and repair that washing machine yourself.

Motorists are already unhappy with the price of petrol and the government is adding _____ to the fire by increasing road tax.

house bridges smoke fingers fuel candle fire ashes

Do you have any similar idioms in your own language?