

Idioms about playing cards

Steve keeps his cards close to his _____, you never know what he's thinking.

Well, if you play your _____ right, you might get my job when I leave.

Let me lay my cards on the _____, I need more money or I will have to look for another job.

It really helps to keep a _____ face when you're negotiating for high stakes.

When she was 17 she called her father's _____ by leaving school and getting a job at a local computer games company.

Senator Johnson played his _____ card by revealing how many jobs had been created during his term in office.

Colorado was the first state to legalize marijuana with other states following _____ soon after.

The Prime Minister refused to take responsibility for the crisis and passed the _____ to the Minister of Education.

Microsoft finally showed their _____ when they released details of their new Xbox console.

hand	bluff	table	suit	chest	ace	trump	poker	buck	cards
------	-------	-------	------	-------	-----	-------	-------	------	-------

Try to think of situations when some of these idioms could be used.