

Travel idioms

Sorry, what was I saying? My phone rang and now I've lost my train of thought.

The new website design is not a radical departure from the previous one. We didn't think it was necessary to reinvent the _____.

I'm looking for a new job, I've been at this company for five years which is a long time for me. I'm starting to get itchy _____.

I know it's difficult for you to accept Tim but sometimes you have to keep your opinions to yourself. Keep your mouth shut and don't rock the _____.

I was the first person in my class to wear a Harrington jacket but everyone else soon jumped on the _____.

You're on the right _____ with this design but I'm not 100% sure about the colour scheme you've chosen.

Ok, I think everybody is here, let's get this _____ on the road.

Steven went off the _____ a bit when he first left home but he's turned out to be a very nice young man.

I expect you've heard that I lost my job, bad _____ travels fast.

news bandwagon wheel boat track rails feet show
--

Can you think of any situations when you might use some of these idioms?