

Water based idioms

We're having a difficult year, Mary lost her job and we can barely keep our _____ above water.

He hasn't found it easy fitting in at the new school, most of the other students already know each other. He feels a bit like a _____ out of water.

I've always wanted to work for myself and now the kids have both left home, I decided to take the _____.

The charity event raised $80,000 but that's a _____ in the ocean compared to what's really needed.

Sorry to throw you in at the deep _____ but I'm sure you'll soon pick it up and if you have any questions just give me a call.

Simon's thinks he's in hot _____. The boss wants to talk to him about the Anderson account we had problems with.

Simon, don't worry about that little problem we had last year, it's water under the _____ now.

Oh Betty, it's time you got over Jack. Look, he wasn't good enough for you and there's plenty more fish in the _____.

drop fish end bridge heads plunge sea water
--

Are there any similar idioms in your own language?

Can you think of situations when you might use some of these idioms?